1 Introduction

Please use this file as the template/style sheet for documents. It contains extra code and code-last-line styles for code examples, both of which have spelling disabled. There is also an `code inline` style for use in code references in other paragraphs.

code
code last line has a gap after the paragraph

The text body is the normal format, though text body indent can be used if you want to indent everything, even the sentences that appear on the paragraphs under the original one.

Whereas the first-line-indent paragraph style indents the first line, but the second and later paragraphs are all out on the original width

A callout is a text body indent with italic text. Use it for important facts
